HE HATES CLEVELAND
Henry Watterson Denounces Ex President in Bitter Terms.

CANNOT UNITE DEMOCRATS

Characterizes Him as "Artful, Selfish, Ignorant and Vulgar."

Londonville, August 22.—In reply to the charge that if Henry Watterson is intent on uniting the Democratic party, his attitude toward Grover Cleveland and David B. Hill is hard to explain, the editor of the Courier-Journal in an editorial says: "In his recent manifestation of political activity Mr. Cleveland may have been a disinterested man. If he was, he made a serious mistake in supposing he could contribute to Democratic harmony. But we do not think he was a disinterested man. No, the contrary, it is our opinion that he never drew an unselfish breath in all his life; that he goes not after all there is in sight, he does not go out at all; that he blocked the way of all sound money Democrats in 1896 and that, hoping for a nomination then, he would not reappear upon the scene if he did not hope for it now; and that all his pretensions posing as a retired sage and patriot is but the crafty speculation and perjury of a man who has been like his younger prototype, Theodore Roosevelt, a candidate for office ever since he came of age."

"We detect him, not because of anything he ever did or said to us, but for what we have seen him do and heard him say to others. He is an artful, selfish, ignorant and vulgar professional politician, having had amazing good fortune and been possessed of rare skill in the pursuit of his own ambition and desires. His reappearance upon the scene at this time could have no other purpose than to help himself in some form or other. It could have no other effect than to inflame and divide."

"No real Democrat can regard Mr. Cleveland other than as a marplot and a wreck. Between him and Bryan we would support Bryan ten times over; between him and Roosevelt we would support Roosevelt. Of course, the suggestion of his candidacy is a kind of absurdity. But not in his opinion, nor in the opinion of the wealthy oligarchs behind him. He means business, and they mean business; and their business is destruction to Democracy."

"That he and Hill came together meant merely that each expected to get the better of the other. They are a pair of professional politicians, neither one. It was an unlikely occasion to Hill, who did have something to lose. But, as a matter of fact, Cleveland has always outplayed Hill."

"Harmony should not be looked for in that direction. Real harmony lies elsewhere. Mr. Cleveland, if he be for one in his life a disinterested man, can only make things worse. But it is 'out for de job,' as is his habit and character, he yet has the capacity to kick the mud in the faces of all who follow him. Hence we draw the line on him!"

ROOSEVELT MAKES POWERFUL SPEECH

It is a republic with which our own great republic must ever be closely knit by the ties of common interests and common aspirations. Cuba must always be peculiarly related to us in international politics. She must in internal affairs be to a degree a part of our political system. In return, she must have peculiar relations with us economically. She must be in a sense, part of our economic system. We expect her to accept a political attitude toward us which we think wisest both for her and for us. In return, we must be prepared to put her in an economic position as regards our tariff system which will give her some measure of the prosperity which we enjoy. We can take no judgment, avoid taking this attitude if we are to preserve in the course which we have outlined for ourselves as a nation during the past four years; and, therefore, I believe that it is only a matter of time—and, I trust, only a matter of a very short time—before we enter into reciprocal trade relations with Cuba."

"The following canal represents what is probably to be the greatest engineering feat of the twentieth century. Before we start upon the construction of the canal certain questions of detail and of our relations with the people owning the soil have to be settled. When this has been done, the first question will come upon choosing the commission which is to supervise the building of the canal. Here, again, we have to deal with an enterprise vast and so far reaching in its effects that but one thought is permissible—how to get the very best men in the nation, the men of the highest engineering and business and administrative skill, who will consent to undertake the work. If possible, I should like to see these men represent different sections and different political parties. But these questions are secondary. The primary task must be to get men who, though able to control much greater salaries than the nation is able to pay, nevertheless possess the patriotism and the healthy ambition which will make them willing to put their talent at the government's service."

"So much for what has been done in the President. In the Orient the labor war was more difficult."

Much that every woman should know is told in the circular wrapped about the SOAP.

stages even of what eventually turn out to be the most brilliant victories.

THE PHILIPPINES.
"All this is true of what has happened during the last four years in the Philippine Islands. The Spanish war itself was an easy task, but it left us certain other tasks which were much more difficult. One of these tasks was that of dealing with the Philippines. The easy thing to do was to let them go. The thing which appealed not only to lazy and selfish men, but to very good men whose thought did not drive them down to the root of things—was to leave the islands. Had we done this, a period of wild chaos would have supervened; and then some stronger power would have stepped in and seized the islands and have taken up the task which we in this case would have flinched from performing."

"A less easy but infinitely more absurd course would have been to leave the islands ourselves and at the same time assure them that we would not permit anyone else to interfere with them. This particular course would have combined all the possible disadvantages of every other course which was advocated. It would have placed us in a humiliating position, because when the actual test came it would have been quite out of the question for us, after some striking deed of savagery had occurred on the islands, to stand by and prevent the entry of civilization into them, while the mere fact of our having threatened them to govern against outside interference by ourselves or others, would have put a premium upon every species of tyranny and anarchy within the islands."

"Finally, there was the course which we adopted—not an easy course—one fraught with danger and difficulty, as we generally find the case in this world, when some great feat is to be accomplished, but an incident to working out national destiny. We made up our minds to stay in the islands—to put down violence—to establish peace and order—and then to introduce a just and wise civil rule, accompanied by a measure of self-government which should increase as rapidly as the islands showed themselves capable of it. Well, it was certainly a formidable task; but think of the marvellously successful way in which it has been accomplished."

"The first and vitally important fact was the establishment of the supremacy of the American flag, and this had to be done by the effort of those great fellow Americans of our time, who, as we know, are the officers and enlisted men of the United States army, regulars and volunteers alike. In a succession of campaigns, carried on in unknown tropic jungles against an elusive and treacherous foe vastly outnumbering them, under the most adverse conditions of climate, weather and country, our troops completely broke the power of the insurgents, smashed their armies and hurled the broken rebel legions into submission. In his latter stages the war against our rule sank into mere brigandage, and what our troops had to do was to hunt down the parties of lawless men. It was not a task which it was humanly possible to accomplish in a month or a year, but month by month, year by year, with unwearied and patient resolution, our army to the Philippines did the task which it found ready at hand until the last vestiges of the rebellion were wiped out."

HIT A SOLDIER.

The Experience of One of Our Men.
The soldier boy who fought during the Rebellion went home as a hero. He had shape, caused by exposure and intemperance, which left its mark in the wreck of many a stomach. Merrill Hutchinson, of Reading, Mass., tells his experience.

"I am an old soldier who served all through the war of the Rebellion and my coffee drinking commenced when I enlisted. I drank it three times a day and as the time of the war returned home almost a wreck."

"For years I had despaired of the worst kind and could not drink anything but warm water or warm milk, nor eat enough to hardly keep a man alive. After suffering this way for years, and half dying, I was told by a friend of your Postum Coffee."
